Private Chef ♦ Presenter ♦ Author

Justice Stewart is the author of Mastering the Art of Sous Vide Cooking, named one of the best sous vide cookbooks of 2019 by Book Riot. Chef Justice was recognized by the National Black Chef's Association as the first African American to write a cookbook about sous vide. He is the founder of Gourmet Deconstructed Personal Chef Services, which offers intimate parties and private dining for clients in the Greater New York Area. Chef Justice also manages the blog that started it all, GourmetDeconstructed.com.

Chef Justice is a member of the American Culinary Federation (ACF) and, in 2019, joined the International Sous Vide Association as an advisory board member and was soon appointed Executive Chef for the nascent multi-national organization.

He continues to share his passion for food and his love of all things culinary by volunteering his skills whenever possible, including fundraising events for No Child Hungry, St. Peter's Orphanage, Kiddie Keep Well Camp and the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

Chef Justice has been a repeat contributor to Cuisine Noir Magazine and has been featured on the Hungry Squared and Fire & Water Cooking podcasts, as well as Newsday, The Atlanta Journal-Constitution, CulEpi, The Inspired Home, Bridal Tribe, A Taste of Dawn Magazine and Food Porn Daily, among others. His seafood recipes have been featured by Wulf's Fish (wulfsfish.com).

Chef Justice was raised in Ravenswood Houses in Queens, New York. He left a career in construction to pursue his passion of becoming a chef, which introduced him to the fast-paced and delicious world of catering, from a major social media company to the celebrity clientele at a private suite in Madison Square Garden. He currently lives – and cooks – in Brooklyn, New York, with his girlfriend and two cats.

I was a self-taught home cook who learned enough from others to go pro. I'm compelled to share what I've learned – to pay it forward. I know that everyday home cooks can level up their skills and presentation, because I did it myself.”
